

Certificate of Completion

For every course in the Udemy marketplace, you can get a bonafide certificate of completion once you finish a course. AND, you can easily share it with the world to let others know how much smarter you are!

Here is where you can find your certificate:

1. Before you register for a course, you can always see whether a course offers a certificate here:

The screenshot displays the Udemy course page for "How to Create a Udemty Course" by Dr. Audrey Heinesen. The page layout includes a top navigation bar with "Discover", "Search", "Teach Online", "Login", and "Sign Up". The main header features the course title and a "Start Learning Now Free" button. Below the header, the course description and a list of topics are shown. A red arrow points to the "Please make sure you review Section 1!" text. On the right, a section titled "14918 users are already taking this course" displays a grid of user avatars, an average rating of 4.5 stars, and a link to "click to see a sample" of the certificate. Below this, the "Course Requirements..." section lists "A computer that connects to the internet". The "Content and Goals" section lists three goals: "Over 23 lectures and 2 hours of content!", "Give clear guidance on how to create a Udemty course.", and "Provide essential information on creating a successful Udemty course." The "Who Should Attend?" section lists "Give step-by-step instructions on the Udemty platform." The bottom section, "LECTURES:", shows the first two lectures: "Lecture 1: Welcome to the" and "Lecture 2: You are invited to the".

Welcome to Udemty! If you're a new instructor (or a seasoned one looking for new tips), you're in the right place! This course is taught by Udemty.

In the first part of this course, you will learn essential information in creating a high quality online course on Udemty. You will learn:

- what Udemty is and what a Udemty course looks like, including standards for the marketplace
- 4 steps in designing and creating a Udemty course
- what resources Udemty provides to help you be a successful instructor on Udemty
- technical know-how's on the platform
- tips in producing high quality video and other materials for teaching and learning

Please make sure you review Section 1!

Have a question on how to produce clear audio or lighting in a video? Want to know more about teaching online? In Section 2 and beyond, we approach these questions and more. Feel free to review these lectures at anytime.

In addition to course materials and a Q&A area, we hold Live Sessions in this course to workshop your course ideas and production questions (you are invited!). To see upcoming live sessions, please join this course and check out the dashboard.

Welcome! I look forward to working with you.

2. Once you register as a student in a course, you can find the certificate on the course's main dashboard as shown here:

The screenshot shows the UdeMy interface for a course titled "The mission of testing is always changing. Yeap,...". The course is by Oktay Caglar and has 14 students. The curriculum is divided into three sections: "PRESENTATION LECTURES", "VIDEO LECTURES", and "MASHUP LECTURES". The first section contains four items: "LECTURE 1: test" (marked as "Upcoming"), "LECTURE 2: PDF Test" (4 pages), "QUIZ 1: Quick Quiz" (4 questions), and "LECTURE 4: Purity Ring - Fineshrine on Vimeo" (01:55). The second section contains "LECTURE 5: The Unbearable Lightness of Being" (10:52). The third section contains "LECTURE 6: The Man Who Was Thursday" (44 slides). On the right side, there is a message: "To unlock your certificate, you need to complete 43 lectures!". Below this, there are announcements and a section for questions.

It will tell you how many lectures you will need to complete before unlocking the certificate (it's the entire course!).

3. Once you complete all the items in a course (lectures & quizzes), you will successfully unlock the certificate (yay!):

The screenshot shows the UdeMy interface for a course titled "How to Create a UdeMy Course" by Dr. Audrey Heinesen. The course has 14918 students. The progress bar indicates "You have completed 23 of 23 lectures in this course". A green button says "Congratulations! You completed this course.". On the right side, there is a message: "Congratulations, you unlocked your certificate of completion! Get it here.". Below this, there are announcements and a section for questions.

Click "Get it here" to go to your official certificate page. That page will be available to you forever! From there, you can download a copy of your certificate or share it with others on LinkedIn, Facebook, or Twitter.

Collect as many certificates as you want! Here's a sample of what a completion certificate looks like:
